PAYS PENALTY OF CRIME

HENRY BOYD HANGED FOR MURDER OF MARTHA ODEN.

Early Morning Execution in Marlboro' -Crowds Arrive Too Late to Witness It.

Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.

UPPER MARLBORO', Md., January 17. Henry Boyd, colored, paid the penalty of death on the scaffold here this morning for the murder of Martha Oden. He cut her throat with a razor one night last summer. Sheriff Benjamin N. Hardesty sprung the trap exactly one minute past 7 o'clock. The body was permitted to remain suspended from the cross-beam of the scaffold several minutes after life was declared to be extinct. Then it was lowered and placed in a coffin furnished by the county, to be delivered to a sister of the deceased for interment at Mount Carmel cemetery.

The execution was by far the most orderly affair of its kind ever witnessed in Prince George's county. Sheriff Hardesty was highly commended for the manner in which the affair was conducted. The sheriff had anticipated a repetition of scenes which had been previously witnessed at the ex-ecutions of criminals, and he concluded that an early morning execution would deprive some of the morbidly curious people of an opportunity to witness the last chapter in the life of Henry Boyd. Then, too, the prisoner had requested that the execution

Boyd retired at an early hour last night and was up early this morning. When he arose he expressed himself as feeling better than he had ever felt in his life, and said he wanted to see the Rev. Charles Trinkhaus, his spiritual adviser. The latter reached the jail shortly before 6 o'clock and administered holy communion. A few min utes later the condemned man partook heartily of steak, sausage, eggs, biscuit and coffee.

"Now I'm ready and willing to go," he said to the guard when he had finished his last meal. Father 'rinkhaus returned to the prison shortly after 6:30 o'clock, and in a few minutes he announced that the pris-oner was ready to undergo the severe ordeal that awaited him.

Bade His Friends Good-Bye. The death warrant had been read to him earlier in the morning, and the work of making the final preparations required but a few minutes. When his arms had been pinioned he walked from the cell to the doors of other cells and bade three or four of his friends farewell, saying: "Good-bye, boys; I hope you will all meet me in

Down the long flight of iron steps to the rear door of the prison the condemned man then passed with the priest and guards, and upon reaching the jail yard he stopped and looked to see if any of his friends or acquaintances were numbered among the twenty spectators. He evidently saw none, for he said nothing. Turning toward the scaffold, Boyd seemed to make a careful inspection of the instrument of death.

Then he got ahead of his guard and of Deputy Sheriff Curley and Constable Clark, and actually ran up the steps and took his position on the trap. Father Trinkhaus and the guards were close behind him, and when Boyd had repeated prayers after the priest the trap was sprung and the law had been satisfied. Boyd's bedy hung motionless and there was not the slightest sign of a struggle. Drs. Reverdy Sasscer and G. F. Owens made several examinations of the body before the heart ceased to beat, and several minutes after the last pulsation was noticed the body was lowered. Wanted It Over Early.

Several days ago Boyd mentioned something about the hour of the execution to J. H. E. Mitchell, a member of the death watch. He wrote on a piece of wrapping "Can't I be hung early in the morning?" When the guard read this he inquired: "Will 9 o'clock do?" "Earlier than that," remarked Boyd, "and my mother wants me to be hung early,

Sheriff Hardesty was told of the request and he was glad the suggestion had come from the condemned man. While he was anxious that the affair should be over be-fore the crowd assembled, he did not want it to appear that he was exercising undue

Shortly after the affair was over crowds of curious people began arriving. There was a delegation of a dozen or more from Calvert county, who came on the early train, and a number of people also came from Washington, but they were all too late to see anything except the funeral. Boyd's mother, who lives in Washington, did not come here to see her son during his last few days on earth.

Weather conditions and general forecast-The disturbance noted Thursday morning over southern Virginia moved rapidly over the Atlantic by way of Bermuda with steadily increasing energy without causing any rain, except light showers, in the south Atlantic states. West of the Rocky mountains rain and snow were quite general, except over the southern districts.
Temperatures have fallen decidedly east of the Mississippi river, and are again 5 degrees to 20 degrees below the seasonal average, with freezing temperature almost to the gulf. In the west there has been an equal rise in temperature, due to a low pressure area covering the northwest and extreme central west. The weather will continue fair and cold tonight and Saturday in the Atlantic states, except Florida, where it will be warmer. PROJECTED PACIFIC CABLE

ADVANTAGES OF GOVERNMENT OWN-ERSHIP PRESENTED.

Gen. Greely and Admiral Bradford Give Their Views From a Milltary Point of View.

The advantages of government control of the projected Pacific cable were presented today before the commerce committee of the House. Admiral Bradford, who has had charge of the cable soundings; Gen. Greely, head of the signal service, who has devoted much attention to this subject; Capt. Russell, who has done much of the cable work in the Philippines, and Thomas F. Clark, vice president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, were among those present.

Mr. Clark said the plan presented by the Commercial Cable Company contemplated exclusive arrangements with the lines in the far east, the effect of which would restrict the business to this one line, preventing competition and such advantages to the government and public as would accrue from competition. Mr. Clark emphasized the prospective commercial development of the orient and American trade in that quarter and pointed out the disadvantage that would accrue from any private control, which would, he said, the up the bus-iness for an indefinite period, and place the far eastern links of the cable system entirely under foreign control. Gen. Greely stated that about 10,000 miles of cable and telegraph were now under government charge. He was strongly fav-orable to government control of the Pacific project, and showed the extent to which governments were extending their control of cables. One of the recent extensions was by Germany on the China coast, while France and other countries were making similar cable extensions. Gen. Greely said an American cable to the Philippines would o much good in Americanizing the islands.

He cited instances of the current news appearing in the Philippines coming by for-eign cables, presenting the affairs of Germany and other countries, but not men-tioning the most important developments in the United States.

Gen. Greely stated that during the Spanish-American war it became necessary for him to secure control of the Haitien cable for thirty days, at $2,000 a day. In times of war, he said, it was impossible to observe due secrecy when cable lines were under foreign control. He had discussed the subject with President McKinley, who was favorable to an "American cable, under American control, in peace and war."

Admiral Bradford was favorable to having the cable laid, operated and controlled by the government, not for commercial considerations, but as a naval and military necessity. He said the British navy had great advantages over other navies by reason of being linked by cable with all insular possessions. If there was a war with Great Britain tomorrow, Admiral Bradford said, it would be impossible for us to com-municate by cable with the Philippines.
